School-Based Mental Health Plan

(per NC G.S. 115C-376.5 and SBOE Policy SHLT-003)

Effective October 27, 2021 – Revised July 24, 2024

Since its founding, Classical Charter Schools of Southport (10B) has recognized that student mental and physical health are integral parts of a foundation for academic success. Support of students in this area aligns with the school's mission statement of assisting the next generation with having the skills for effective expression, communication, and understanding of how they fit in this world, with a love for learning and discovery.

Executive Summary and Current Status

Promotion and Support for Student Mental Health and Well-Being

Since its founding, the school has recognized that student mental and physical health are integral parts of a foundation for student well-being leading to academic success. And student mental and physical health and sense of well-being must be founded, in turn, upon each student being safe and loved. Teachers must greet each student at the classroom door every morning and must never raise their voice or belittle anyone on campus. When outside during periods of drop-off, recess, lunch, or pick-up, all personnel at the school must wear bright yellow safety vests so they can be easily recognized by a student who may need assistance. Likewise, students have a uniform policy that promotes unity and a team spirit to mutually support each other in their endeavors.

Support of students in these vital areas aligns with the school's mission statement of assisting the next generation with having the skills for effective expression, communication, and understanding of how they fit into this world with a love for learning and discovery.

Promoting student mental and physical health, as explained in the original application, begins every school day with every student reciting the school pledge that has as its first line:

“I pledge to keep myself health in body, mind, and spirit - staying physically fit, mentally awake, and morally straight.”

Subsequent lines in the daily pledge address topics of truth, virtue, prudence, justice, temperance, and loyalty among others as positive traits to be learned and modeled. Promoting and supporting the concepts recited in the pledge are accomplished by integrating them into the fabric of the daily life in school.

In the core curriculum of ELA, characters in the literature are discussed and analyzed for the results of their decisions and how their decisions have an impact on themselves and others. In history, prominent figures are similarly discussed and analyzed for their character traits and how these traits influenced their decisions and the lives of those around them. There are Hero/Villain lessons focusing on comparing a hero such as George Washington to a villain such as Benedict Arnold. In the weekly Health class, there is a mental education section for discussion of character traits and a physical section for exercise and physical wellness.

In addition to the morning pledge and the integration of its traits into the curriculum, each month has an identified trait that the entire campus focuses on and that can receive extra attention on field trips, campus events, and even recess. The trait of the month might be used as a basis for some homework assignments. At the end of the month, teachers will decide on a recipient for the Student of the Month award based on the student who best exemplifies that month's trait.

Community Involvement

On our enrollment form, parents are asked to rank their reasons for choosing the school for their child. The first reason is always the school's academic record, but the second reason is character education, which we believe attests to the success of the original plan and implementation for SMH.

School Based Mental Health Services: The school has partnered with a community-based counseling agency who has an assigned social worker to provide counseling. The student is referred at the request of the parent or when a teacher identifies a student as needing emotional support. The social worker meets with the student on a weekly basis and works closely with the school in providing additional support as needed.

Intervention, Assessment, and Improvement

Every SMH plan can be improved, and details of our plan have evolved over a number of years. A more recent focus for plan improvement is that of data acquisition and analysis of SMH problems from several sources of data.

Discipline records: The school's First Law is "Reward good behavior- you'll get more of it!" Teachers and staff have as a goal to give out four reinforcements to every aversive they may issue. The School-Wide Behavior and Discipline Plan is published and contains forms for parents to sign agreeing to the policies discussed in the Plan. Inappropriate behaviors are ranked by seriousness into classes from Class I for minor offenses to Class IV for major offenses such as weapons or drugs on campus.

The school has a database with entry forms for staff to log inappropriate behaviors with the student ID, date, time, and nature of the behavior and the action taken: note to parent; call to parent; sent to office; suspended for parent pick-up. These logs may be analyzed to detect trends that can be identified and remedied.

Social Worker Referral Forms: It is important to note that while mental health problems may manifest themselves in inappropriate behavior, this is not always the case. Thus, there is a separate system for staff referrals to the school's social worker. Referrals can range from students having emotional or family problems to patterns of repeated unusual behavior where the social worker can introduce the family to the local mental health agency or other agency that may be able to assist.

Suicide Prevention: The 24/7 anonymous tip call line protocol can be assessed for students in grades 6-8 in middle school.

Return-to -Learn (Concussions): Head trauma data is collected as incurred and must be assessed along with other data to determine the best learning program for the student.

McKinney-Vento Survey (Homelessness): Biannual data on student homelessness is collected and summary information is provided to the state. Additionally, social worker referrals by teachers occur when they become aware of a change in student family housing conditions.

Given the extensive SMH support being currently addressed throughout the school, the tasks and action items that lay ahead are delineated below.
